Daniel Dixon Joins Energy Distribution Partners’ Corporate Development Team

Chicago, Illinois-based Energy Distribution Partners (“EDP”) announced that Daniel Dixon has joined the Company as Vice President of Corporate Development. EDP’s Corporate Development team is managed by Executive Vice President David Stroupe.

Dixon has deep roots in the propane industry. He joined Propane Resources in 1997 and spent more than 15 years there as a consultant, engaging in valuations/appraisals and business reviews as well as mergers and acquisitions. He later joined AmeriGas Propane where he spent nearly nine years serving as Group Director of Business Development. To-date Dixon has participated in more than 60 successful transactions.

In addition to his corporate roles with Propane Resources and AmeriGas, Dixon has also been an active member of several industry organizations. He is past Chairman of the Alabama Propane Gas Association and more recently past Chairman of the Propane Education & Research Council (PERC). He currently serves on the NPGA’s Board of Directors.

Dixon graduated from the University of Mississippi with a bachelor of science degree in Accountancy, and received his MBA from the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

According to David Stroupe, EDP’s Executive Vice President of Corporate Development, “We are extremely pleased to have Daniel join our Corporate Development team. He is a well-respected propane professional with a deep knowledge of the industry, and he shares our core values of treating every propane marketer with the respect they deserve. We are confident Daniel will represent us well as he works with propane marketers who are considering an exit strategy.”

About Energy Distribution Partners

Energy Distribution Partners (EDP) is a rapidly growing company with deep experience in retail and commercial propane sales, operations and finance. EDP provides safe, reliable propane service to residential, commercial, industrial, and agricultural customers from New York to California. The Company serves more than 170,000 customers in 11 states, with a presence in rural America as well as in major metropolitan areas. EDP has become a significant player in the propane industry, recently recognized as one of the largest independent multi-state marketers, selling more than 130 million gallons of propane and light fuels in 2021. Since its inception in 2012, EDP has helped 30 owners of well-run propane businesses transition to their own “next chapter” while benefiting everyone involved. For more information, please visit www.edplp.net.
